

NIGHT ON THE TOWN

Sydney is chock-a-block full of great entertainment venues and those in the know frequently get to rub shoulders with the A-listers. Here's how to make sure your night out rocks.

SEBASTIAN SALON

A great night out requires a bit of preparation. Get on down to Circular Quay and book a session at Sebastian Salon at the Rocks. This is easily the best place in Sydney to feel a million dollars – helped enormously by the incredible views of the harbour – and the A-list clientele. Apparently Brooke Shields, Raquel Welch, Maggie Thatcher and Whoopi Goldberg have all been pampered here.

QUAY RESTAURANT

Everyone comes to Quay for celebrity chef Peter Gilmore's signature Snow Cone dessert. So why don't you? Quay is Australia's most awarded restaurant and has amazing views that take in the bridge and harbour to match the culinary artistry.

HICKSON ROAD BISTRO

The show's over but you're brimming with energy and feel you could talk all night. Hickson Road Bistro will help you out here – and it's located just off the foyer. The service is fast but always friendly.

CAFÉ SYDNEY

Now that you've got your game face on, show it off with drinks at Café Sydney. This quintessential elevated café on top of Customs House comes with five-star views. Sit outside on the terrace and enjoy a pre-dinner cocktail.

WHARF THEATRE

Now that the dining part of the evening is over, it's time for some culture. The productions at the Wharf Theatre (there's two actually: Wharf 1 and Wharf 2) – attract many of Australia's biggest stars, such as Brian Brown, Hugo Weaving and Richard Roxburgh. And of course the artistic director is Andrew Upton, Cate Blanchett's husband. If you get there early, the Theatre Bar at the End of The Wharf, offers a great selection of cocktails.

PARK HYATT

Everyone's going home but why not stay right where you are and treat yourself to a night in town. Since you're at the Rocks anyway, a night at the Park Hyatt, with its incomparable views is a sure winner. It's also the pick of international celebrities such as the Rolling Stones, Elton John, Jerry Seinfeld, Robin Williams and even our Elle Macpherson. Keep your eyes peeled.
